Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

WHILE the Rev. Arden P. Blaylock, who was reprimanded editorially by his home town paper the Little Rock Gazette two weeks ago for exaggerating vice conditions in that city—while this Rev. Mr. Blaylock was making a prohibition speech at Hope city hall Tuesday afternoon your writer was continuing a fact investigation of the local liquor traffic. I assume every reasonable man knows that everything the Rev. Mr. Blaylock says about the evil of liquor is true. That was an argument for total prohibition, so long as total prohibition remained a legitimate goal for legal experiment. But once it had been tried, discredited and repealed, everything that the Rev. Mr. Blaylock says about the evil of liquor is an unanswerable argument for adequate state control. I am directing these remarks, as always, to the people who believe liquor is still a public problem. What the professional "vets" think, I don't care about.

Hauptmann to Get Supreme Court's Answer by Dec. 9

Highest Tribunal Will Decide Then Whether or Not to Review Case

JERSEY TO REPLY

State's Argument, Due December 5, Will Be Presented Earlier

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann may know by December 9 whether the highest court in the land will interfere with his death sentence in the Lindbergh tragedy. New Jersey officials acknowledged officially Wednesday that notice of Hauptmann's supreme court appeal was docketed on November 12.

Their formal printed argument against a supreme court review must be filed by December 5, but it was indicated that this would be done much sooner.

That would permit the nine justices of the supreme court to examine the New Jersey court records during the two-week recess starting next Monday.

30-Hour Week Is Pushed by Labor

Union Leaders Mobilizing for Winter Battle on "Congress Front"

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Labor leaders are mobilizing their forces for the winter battle on the congressional "front," turning anxious eyes at the same time toward the supreme court.

Labor is preparing to renew the drive for a 30-hour work week and to protect legislative gains made at the last session of congress, particularly collective bargaining guarantees as provided by the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act and the Guffey cash minding measure.

The most significant step so far is the American Federation of Labor's proposal for an amendment to the constitution which would empower congress to enact social welfare legislation to protect the workers as was provided by NIRA. The federation has directed its executive council to present such an amendment to congress.

The vigor with which union leaders press for constitutional change is expected, however, to hinge largely on forthcoming supreme court decisions bearing particularly on labor benefit

Vesey, Graves, O'Neal, Lewis, Atkins Named County Executive Body

By LEONARD ELLIS

In a speech bristling with denunciation of the "alcoholic evil," the Rev. Arden P. Blaylock of Little Rock, sounded a call to arms for Hempstead county dries at a county-wide mass meeting attended by approximately 200 persons at Hope city hall Tuesday afternoon.

Following his speech an organization was formed for the furtherance of a local option election in the near future. An executive committee headed by John P. Vesey of Hope as chairman, was appointed. Besides Mr. Vesey, the committee is composed of: O. A. Graves, N. P. O'Neal, W. A. Lewis and W. S. Atkins, all of Hope.

This committee will appoint a county-wide group to work in connection with the executive committee.

As the meeting drew to a close Sheriff Jim Boarden took the floor and charged that "90 per cent of the bootleg liquor sold in Hempstead county is being sold by Hope liquor dealers after closing hours and on Sundays and holidays." He said that the bootleggers of moonshine had been "pretty well wiped out in this section—and that licensed liquor dealers are the ones that are creating the most trouble at present."

At the start of the meeting, the Rev. Wallace R. Rogers, pastor of Hope First Baptist church, took the floor and acted as chairman. He briefly outlined the purpose of the meeting. He said that as far as the pastors of Hempstead county, were concerned "this meeting is only for a movement for decency."

He then introduced the Rev. Mr. Blaylock, pastor of First Baptist church of Little Rock, who provided the fireworks.

Blaylock's Speech

The Rev. Mr. Blaylock opened up with a barrage of criticism against the wet crowd, the Arkansas legislature, the national administration, and then rapped the local editor for his policy on the liquor question, but at no time called names.

He did not offer a substitute for the state's present liquor law, nor did he suggest a control system. He advocated the abolition of all liquor.

His speech in part follows: "The first rebellion in America was the whisky rebellion. The whisky interests in America refused to be taxed, and in protesting they rose up against the government."

"I see we have the press with us this afternoon. I want to be quoted that the first rebellion in America was the whisky rebellion and that the government would have been overthrown by the whisky interests if the government had not been stronger."

"I am not here to tell you how to vote. I am here to tell you how to think. The good people of Hope and Hempstead county have intelligence. You know how to vote. I am here to discuss the liquor situation, point out the evil of alcohol and its curse upon mankind."

"Liquor has always played a big part in the rise and fall of nations dating back to ancient history. Alcohol has been the contributing factor as a destroyer of empires. If we sell ourselves to the liquor interests you will see the day come when the foundation of this country will decline."

Old Days Forgotten

"The younger generation should be informed. They know nothing of saloons. They don't know what it is for women to kneel down on blood-soaked and beer-soaked sidewalks and pray that saloons be abolished as they did in the old days. We must lead America back to sane and sober civilization."

At this point of the address there were a number of anons from all corners of the house.

Continuing, the Rev. Mr. Blaylock said:

"The liquor interests of this country made the people believe that recovery depended upon repeal of the 18th amendment. They took advantage of us in a depression—but if the democratic principle is dependent upon the wet crowd—then the Democratic party ought to die."

Again there were a number of anons.

Continuing the speaker said: "The liquor interests promised us

Bulletins

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Arkansas Works Progress Administration (WPA) announced Wednesday that almost 100 per cent of the more than 5,000 women in the state who were classified as eligible for employment on May 31, 1935, have been put to work on projects in practically every county in the state.

Gross Tax Thrown Out by U. S. Court

Part of Iowa's Chain Store Levy Invalid—Unit Tax Upheld, However

DES MOINES, Ia.—(AP)—A three-judge federal court Tuesday ruled the gross receipts levy of the Iowa chain store tax law unconstitutional, but upheld a provision taxing the number of units in a chain.

The decision was signed by Circuit Judge Archibald K. Garner and District Judges Charles A. Dower and Matthew M. Joyce. They heard arguments a month ago on a test case brought by 19 chain stores doing business in Iowa. Attorneys for the state said an appeal probably would be taken to the Supreme Court.

The chain tax law, passed by the 1935 assembly after a bitter fight, provided a graduated unit tax starting at $5 a store for each member of the chain up to 10; for each store in excess of 50 the tax amounted to $155 a store.

The gross receipts tax started at $25 for the first $50,000 of business and increased to $476,000 on $9,000,000 of gross.

Restore Birthplace of Lee, U. D. C. Plan

From 37 States Daughters of Confederacy Gather at Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—The Confederacy and its cause have been history more than 70 years, but they are unforgettable.

"The Undying Remembrance" of the official salute to the Confederate flag brought 80 of the South's own daughters together here Tuesday night for the opening session of the forty-second annual convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

The did of come to renew an old conflict, but to honor and perpetuate the memory of those who have gone before and the belief for which they lived and died.

Nor are these daughters of the Old South sectionalists. They come from 37 states of the Union and the District of Columbia, and the Mason and Dixon line is a matter of no concern among them.

Tuesday night the only past president general of the U. D. C. from a city north of that once existent line sat down to dinner in a resplendent company of the organization's highest ranking officers. It was her thirty-third consecutive annual convention, and her New York city address makes her no less a daughter of the Old South and an inheritor of its traditions. She is Mrs. Livingston R. Schuyler, who responded on behalf of all past presidents general of the U. D. C. to greetings extended by Mrs. Martha Banta of Kentucky.

Sponsorship by the U. D. C. of a project to restore the birthplace of Gen. Robert E. Lee, and distribution of free scholarship to boys and girls of Confederate descent were praised by the speaker as outstanding among the organization's achievements.

Greetings were brought to the national group by Mrs. C. S. Lovthrop of Hope, president of the Arkansas division, who presided.

Romance Blossoms Abroad

The paths of Mary Brian and Charles "Buddy" Rogers probably crossed many times in Hollywood, but not until they went to England to make a movie did their interest in each other become more than "usual." That took in Rogers' eye as they sit side by side in a studio Hertfordshire, England, lends strength to the report that they are engaged to marry.

Huge Hole Under Street Repaired

Earth Washed Out by Leaking Sewer—WPA Is Making the Repair

One of the many WPA projects under construction in Hempstead county is the repairing of a great hole under the pavement on South Shover street.

The hole was caused by a leaking sanitary sewer, which had washed out a place about 12 feet deep, 18 feet long and about 10 feet wide.

Only the pavement was left as a roof over the hole. The washed out section was first discovered by a crack in the pavement. Traffic was immediately suspended on that street when the giant cavity was discovered.

The WPA has repaired the leaking joint and is filling the hole. The paving will also be replaced by the WPA.

Italians Checked by Crack Troops

Ethiopian Sharpshooters Under Commander Ayala Finally Halt Invaders

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia.—(P)—Commander Ayala, leading thousands of Ethiopia's best marksmen, successfully halted Wednesday an Italian advance in the Radowa hills, inflicting heavy losses, it was reliably reported here.

By the Associated Press

Ethiopian warriors were reported marching to attack the Italian northern front between Dolo and Makale Wednesday.

A sharp battle on the southern front was reported to have caused casualties of more than 450 on both sides.

Italian headquarters at Asmara received word that a strong column of Haile Selassie's soldiers is advancing toward Selekit eight miles below Makale, into territory in which the Italians have been consolidating their position.

Marriage Notice Urged by Masons

Prevention of Hasty Marriage Better Than Changing Divorce Law

LITTLE ROCK.—Prevention of hasty and ill-considered marriages rather than changes in the existing divorce laws was advocated Tuesday night by J. T. Coston of Osceola as the remedy for the "divorce evil" in the United States. Mr. Coston spoke as grand orator of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas, Free and Accepted Masons, which opened its annual session.

"Let the legislature pass a law requiring a few days' notice to be given the parents or guardians of an applicant for marriage license," he said. "That will put a nend to the kid marriages and the marriages between drunks."

A bill requiring such notice was introduced in the last session of the Arkansas legislature, but killed, he recalled.

"What sane objection could be offered to such a law? I am at a loss to understand," he said. "Maybe I ought not to criticize the members of the legislature. Possibly they do not know any better."

He spoke of cases in which both bride and bridegroom were so thoroughly inebriated that neither could remember the wedding afterward.

Hope Acquires a Permanent Home for Dist. 3 Shop

New Location Adjoins Luck Camp on No. 67—Inside the City Line

FIREHOUSE HELD UP

All Sites Rejected by Committee Following Study of Prices Asked

The City of Hope has purchased a one-acre site for a permanent highway department shop building for District Three, the building to be erected by the WPA and the State Highway Department at a cost of about $12,000.

This was learned Tuesday night on the eve of the second November meeting of the city council. That council had set a deadline of $250 for the offer purchase, and the actual site was selected by the State Highway Department.

The location is on paved highway No. 67, adjoining Luck's Tourist Camp, but inside the corporation line and on the same side of the road as the camp. The purchase agreement was made with the Williamson estate.

The city council heard a committee report on probable locations for a new city jail and fire station. The committee told of four locations, but did not recommend purchase of any at the prices demanded for them.

Erection of a new jail and fire station was recommended by the City Planning Board as a WPA project. The project has not been approved and no money has been allotted as yet.

The council authorized Mayor Graves to purchase Christmas decorations to be used around the city hall during Christmas week.

An ordinance was passed preventing further levying and collection of assessments on curb and gutter district one. Bonds for improvements in this district have been retired.

Unified Taxation System Advocated

Roosevelt Declares U. S. States, Cities, Should "Get Together"

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Continuation of the federal relief program through the next fiscal year was recommended by the United States Conference of Mayors here Wednesday.

The mayors decided to "petition congress for an additional appropriation for the fiscal year 1936-37, sufficient to meet a planned and comprehensive program for relief work and to meet the unemployment situation throughout the country for such period."

A Unified Tax System

WASHINGTON.—(P)—President Roosevelt announced plans Tuesday for a conference during the winter to work out a "better system of taxation, state, municipal and federal."

The announcement was made when the president addressed 50 members of the United States Conference of Mayors in his office at the White House. He was applauded when he asserted that the federal relief policy will continue to be one of "no starvation."

Mr. Roosevelt told the mayors "taxes have grown up like tapers in this country," adding:

"We are stepping on each other's toes, especially in the past five, 10 or 15 years. In fact, virtually since the beginning of the World war the general tax situation in the United States has become not only more complicated but more onerous."

"We haven't had a revision, and I think the time is coming—not this coming session of congress because we hope that it will be a very short session—but by the following year, when all of us can get together and sit around a table and work out a better system of taxation, state, municipal and federal."

"Late this winter we are going to ask you to come down and talk about that subject around the table. I suppose this meeting will be dignified by the name of a tax conference but would rather keep it informal and have it become a continuing study which will bring forth an intelligent report before the close of the year 1936. We will have to think of taxes in a non-partisan way."

Mr. Roosevelt repeated a question asked at his earlier press conference, "is the government going to stop direct relief next July?" and retold his reply:

"My answer was that the federal government and I am sure your answer will be the same for the city governments, does not propose to let people starve after the first of July more than during the past few years."

Your Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

You'd be only partly right if you blamed sinus infection of children on such controllable things as bad ventilation, damp houses and clothing, and exposure to cold. The remainder of the causes for this troublesome condition will be found in circumstances that permit the infectious germ to multiply and make things worse.

Such circumstances include deficient general hygiene, errors of diet, bad climatic conditions, and not infrequently abnormalities in the structure of the nose, and enlarged tonsils and adenoids.

The sinuses begin to develop when the child is young, but may not attain their full growth until the fifteenth year of age. By the fifth or sixth year, they are large enough to cause trouble if they become infected.

Complications may affect the brain, the ears, or other structures associated with the sinuses.

You can tell a child with a chronic sinus infection by the fact that it is protracted and easily fatigued. Usually there is a fairly chronic running of the nose and some difficulty in breathing.

The child gets well from one cold only to catch another. There is a loose cough, which gets worse at night and in the early morning. There is also loss of appetite, deficient general development, and intermittent or constant hoarseness.

Headaches occur in 20 per cent of the children with chronic sinus infection. They are usually accompanied by sneezing, watery eyes, and a feeling of the glands of the neck are exceedingly common.

Some persons insist that food is an exceedingly important factor in relation to sinus infections. One even goes so far as to say that a deficiency of vitamin A is of chief importance.

Another argues that when there is an excess of starch and meat in the diet the sinuses become affected. Still another feels that the lack of calcium is the important factor.

The mere fact that these different opinions are offered would seem to indicate that the person who is likely to be infected should eat a well-balanced diet with all the important vitamins, mineral salts, and proteins if he wants to keep his body in the best possible shape to avoid infection.

We know that infections of the sinuses are much more frequent in some parts of the world than in others, and that in the United States the areas around great bodies of water develop more cases of sinus infection than are seen in the dry southwest.

Practically everybody is agreed that enlargement of the tonsils and adenoids is frequently associated with infections of the sinuses. This does not mean, however, that all tonsils and adenoids ought to be removed.

It does mean that suitable investigation should be made of the tonsils and adenoids in every case, and whenever there is any indication that they are failing to cope satisfactorily with infections, they should be cut out promptly.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Every school of journalism in the country should have a copy of "Forty Years—Forty Millions," by George Britt. For this is a biography of that lamented publisher, Frank A. Munsey, and it is a magnificent handbook of the things that a newspaperman should not be.

Munsey made millions in the magazine field, and more millions in chain groceries. He aspired to be a Dana or a Pulitzer, so he started to buy newspapers; but this touch was death, and all that he is remembered for today is the way in which he killed respected old journals.

Munsey was crochety, opinionated, and willful; but his chief fault seems to have been that he looked on a newspaper purely as a money-making proposition.

Now a newspaper, of course, has to pay its way, and if it doesn't it fails; but it is also a great deal more than that. It is a public utility, and the publisher who doesn't know it is no publisher at all and never will be.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

What books are most appropriate for toddlers? What are the special reading interests of boys and girls? Olive Roberts Barton, child training authority, makes timely suggestions on these subjects as the Christmas gift rush nears. The list in this second of her series of three articles on children's books will be valuable for future reference.

It used to be taken for granted that small children liked to be told stories rather than to read to them. They still like it, but the fertility of the average parent in producing fiction suitable for babies is lacking in the funny, fearless and even moralizing tales that delight these youngsters.

Besides children love to own a book. They like to look at the pictures, and to carry a book around. It is, they are smart enough to know, a sort of magic box that opened on mother's knee, keeps them happy and interested.

I give here a short list of books suitable for babies of two or three and for children up to six. There are hundreds of others that are just as good but I have gone in for variety.

If the title sometimes sounds grown-up, it is unfortunate. In this list all are decidedly for very young children. The author's names follow the titles.

For Baby
Rag and Linnen Books: Baby's First Book; Baby's Picture Book; A B C; Alphabet; Toys; Farmyard Friends; Little Red Hen.

From Three to Six
Bear Twins; Hogan; Tale of Peter Rabbit; Potter; Tale of Benjamin Bunny; Potter; A B C Bunny; Gag; Tim Tadpole and the Bullfrog; Flock; Mother Goose; Story of Mrs. Tubb; Lofting; Picture Tales for Tiny Toes; LeCron and Jewett; Goop; and How Not to Be Them; Burgess; Chasing; Clump; Carvel; Bird and Fish; Morrow; Nicodemus and The Little Black Pig; Hogan.

General Suggestions
Most of the series books that carry one character, or two through their pages are enjoyed by small children, if they are especially written for them to understand.

Authors know, nowadays, to leave out the frightening adventures for the little boy and girl.

I advise the out-of-the-way mother beyond reach of shops, to write to publishers, stores, large city libraries or child-study associations for lists or catalogues. Sometimes a friend or club-woman or local librarian can furnish the names of publishers of children's books, and the cities they are in.

Then keep them—never lose a book list.

For Older Children
Please understand, the following list "Books for Boys" is not any such thing. Girls like the same books, often prefer them to those written especially for girls; besides children young and old seldom play favorites.

Age knowing no boundaries when it comes to books, let us go at it by way. The first are for children of six or seven. The scale gradually rises to ten.

It is impossible to name a third or a tenth of the good books for children today, so I reach into the grab-bag blind-folded and do the best I can.

Six to Ten
Adventures of a Brownie; Mulock; The Terrible Nuisance; Bacon; Mister Penny; Hollet; Junkie; Is Nice; Kurt; That's Why; Reed; The Train Book; Pryor; The Fire Engine Book; Pryor; Sugar-Plum House; Larkin; Stories for the Seven-Year-Old; Chisholm & Quinn; Stories for the Eight-Year-Old; Chisholm & Quinn; Pappy King Weaver; The Big Tent; Canfield; The Good Friends; Silance; Green Outside; Godley; Jamaica Johnny; the Hades.

Black Beauty; Savell; Queenie; Day; The Fun Book; Geister; The Wooster; Foosters; Mullison; Rainbow in the Sky; Undermyer; The Spider's Palace; Hughes; St. Nicholas Books; Hughes; The Oz Books; Baum; Robin on the Mountain; Simon; Uncle Remus & Brier Rabbit; Morris; Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp; Mackinsky.

Merry Christmas to You (collection); W. Harper; The Painted Pig; Morrow; The Windy Book; Hawthorne; Story of Dr. Doolittle; Lofting; In the Days of Clasp; A. B. Brown; Blue Fairy Book; Lark; The Magic Fishbone; Dickson; The Wonder Clock; Pyle; The Jungle Book (and Just so Stories); Kipling; The Book of King Arthur; Mary Stokes; Puck of Pook's Hill; Kipling; Karl the Elephant; Muckerji; The Call of the Wild; London; The Flamingo Feather; Kirk Munroe; The New Moon; Mulgus; "WE"; Linbergh; Kidnaped and Treasure Island; Stevenson; Scottish Chiefs; Potter; Story of King Arthur & His Knights; Pyle; Story of Mankind; Van Loon; Bob; Son of Battle; Oliviant; Adventures of Huckleberry Finn; Twain; Tom Sawyer; Twain; The Young Stamp Collector's Own Book; Butler; Model Boat Building for Boys; Caviller; and How to Care for Them; Crandall; Just Dicks; Barker; Myths Every Child Should Know.

More boys' books will be included in the "Early Teens" list tomorrow.

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

A girl with creamy skin has to be content in her choice of makeup and particular care of her complexion. This type of complexion is sure to look dingy if it isn't given meticulous attention.

Generally speaking, creamy skins are normal or slightly oily. You seldom see an excessively dry one. They have underlying tones of pale yellow, of course, and usually are enhanced in makeup that has subtle orange lights in it.

If your skin is creamy and normal, always remember to use soap and water before cleansing with cream. If it has a tendency to be oily, cream first, then wash.

Stick a rouge that matches the natural tone of your cheeks when they are flushed from exercise or excitement. Undoubtedly an off red will be better than a clear one or a pink shade.

This doesn't mean that you should go in for a strange orange-henna rouge which, unless there's something wrong with your health, never in the world will match your blood tones.

LETTERS to the Editor

This is your newspaper. Write to it. Letters criticizing the editorial policy or commenting upon facts in the news columns, are equally welcome. Choose a topic everyone will be interested in. Be brief. Avoid personal abuse. The world's greatest critics write fully posted. Every writer must sign his name and address.

Prakes Star's Stand
Editor The Star: Please allow me to commend you on your editorial on the liquor question in your paper of November 16, 1935.

I favor the handling of liquor pretty much as you outline it, so as to let, as far as possible, all the profits go for the benefit of the city, county and state.

I am sure that you are absolutely right when you say that the churches are often wrong.

For instance, the church schools have been for years "pulling off" and continue to do so, bigger shows in athletics than Ringling pulls off in his United Shows.

I could call attention to some other instances where I am sure they are far from right.

Lipstick, too, ought to match the natural color of your lips. Undoubtedly one of the new East Indian colors will blend fairly closely and, in addition, emphasize the creaminess of your skin.

The real test of your ability to pick cosmetics that enhance your loveliness comes when you buy face powder. Don't let anyone try to sell you powder which is even a slight shade darker than your own complexion. It must match and match perfectly.

Don't wear black mascara unless your lashes are coal black. Brown is best. Eyeshadow, if used at all, should be brown, too. Do, however, use all makeup sparingly. There's no advantage in having lovely, creamy skin if you cover it completely with layers of cosmetics.

Morassic, Davis on Mat Program

Two New Wrestlers Make Debut in Hope Arena Wednesday Night

Two former college football players, Fred Morassic of Northwestern University, and Owen Davis of Oklahoma A. & M. will make their local wrestling debut here Wednesday night at Fair park arena.

Morassic takes on the Bald Eagle, veteran grappler of Burbank, Alaska, in the first main event. Davis will meet Billy McEuen of Fort Worth, Tex. in the second main event. Both bouts are billed for two hours each if necessary to reach a decision.

McEuen is no stranger here. Fans remember him for a tough battle here last summer against Jack McDonald. Tickets may be purchased from any member of Hope Boys band. Courtesy tickets will be honored, but all complimentary passes have been suspended. The match starts at 8 p. m.

CHAPTER XLIII
THEY were sitting in the living room of Jean's little apartment. Jean, her father, and Larry Glenn. Refreshed by 12 solid hours of sleep, Jean sat in an arm chair, glancing fondly back and forth from one man to the other.

"So, you see," Larry was saying, "the important thing is not to let all that has happened blight your life. You've been foolish, as you say; but you've been so much more foolish than any girl might have been under the same circumstances. The cards were pretty well stacked against you, after all."

He dropped his cigarette butt in an ashtray and leaned forward, his elbows on his knees.

"The chief trouble," he said, "was that you worked for a black crook and never suspected it until too late."

"You mean—Mr. Montague?" she asked.

"I mean Mr. Donald Montague," he said grimly. "He, by the way, is cooling his heels in jail right now, and before very long the legal profession will be rid of one of its worst shysters—and the population of Leavenworth prison will be increased by one."

"Don Montague," he went on, after a moment, "represents the sort of thing that every decent lawyer wants to get rid of. He is one of the links in the chain that makes large-scale crime possible in this country. Every lawyer has the right to defend a man accused of crime, of course. That's what lawyers are for. But Montague didn't stop there. He went on and became, to all intents and purposes, a member of the gang himself."

"He helped the Jackson mob plan things in advance. He told them, beforehand, how to dodge the law. He helped frame crooked alibis for them, on occasion—as he did when the Dover police were on the verge of pinning a robbery charge on Sandy Harkins. He helped them dispose of their stolen bonds—as he did in the affair that almost got Bobby Wallace into a jam."

"That's a hard one to figure," he said. "By the way—why they should have shoved those bonds through an outsider like Bobby. The reason, I presume, was that they figured it would leave everybody in the clear if the deal came to light. Lewis, who passed the bonds, would be gone. Montague, who bought them from Bobby, would be able to tell a story which, while manifestly rather absurd, would still leave him technically innocent. And Bobby would have had to take the rap."

"Anyhow, that's what Montague was like. You worked for him. He introduced you to the manager of The Golden Feather night club. Naturally, thinking that he was a perfectly respectable person, you were not suspicious of people to whom the manager, in turn, introduced you."

"And then this final stunt of Montague's—sending you off to carry a letter to Harkins. That was where he overplayed his hand a little. He believed, I guess, that you were so deeply involved with Harkins that you either knew all about Harkins' record or would be unable to back out when you learned it."

"By all means," he said, "Overriding Jean's protests, the two men got their hats and left. Jean stood alone in the living room. They had left the hall door open, and she could hear them, greeting Bobby, on the stairs. Then the sound of their voices died away, she heard a quick step coming along the hall, the door clicked shut, and Bobby Wallace was in the room."

She stood by the windows, her back toward Bobby, fumbling miserably with the curtain. She heard him coming over to her, and her knees trembled.

"Well," said Bobby at last, "aren't you even going to say good evening?"

She said, "Good evening," in a small voice.

"You don't sound awfully glad to see me," said Bobby. She made no answer, but continued, absently, mindlessly, to fumble with the curtain.

"I'm glad to see you," he remarked. "Or I would be, if you would turn around and let me look at you."

"No, you're not," she said miserably. "You can't be. You're just being—po-polite."

"I can. I am."

"No, you can't. Not after—after everything—"

Two strong hands suddenly came down on her shoulders and spun her around. Bobby was saying, "For the love of Mike, will you leave that curtain alone before you ruin the dam thing?"

Then he was standing, looking at his hands on her shoulders. She looked down at the middle button on his waistcoat and waited.

"Listen," he said. "If you waded out over your depth in this business, so did I. If you got into a jam over it, so did I. Don't be like this."

One hand came down and took her chin and tilted her head back. She was looking in Bobby's eyes, at last—those same clear, honest eyes that she had known since girlhood, speaking now with a message that was like balm to her bruised self-esteem, speaking a pledge of love and fidelity that no accident and no folly could shake.

Leaf Burning

We swept the fallen leaves up yesterday and touched them with slow fire; And as we saw smoke rising and drift away. We knew a keen desire. To sweep our mind of old things lying there: Dreams long since dead Left scattered round, Small doubts and fears, and lay them in a heap. On fire, smoked crowned: Them stir the embers so a laughing wind Might lift the ashes of old praise and blame And bear them far away, leaving our mind Clean as if swept by flame.

nounce the arrival of a little son, J. B. III, Monday, November 18 at Julia Chester hospital.

A group of students from the Senior High School met on Monday evening at the home of Miss Julia Broening on South Main street and organized a French club. During a short period of business the following officers were elected: president, John Clyde Hill, vice president, Miss Julia Broening, secretary and reporter, Miss Evelyn Simpson, treasurer, Miss Kathleen Collier; sponsor, Mrs. R. L. Broach. Following a social meeting at which time games and contests were held, the hosts served hot chocolate and cakes. The next meeting will be a Christmas meeting held at the home of the sponsor, Mrs. R. L. Broach.

Mrs. J. L. Lewis has returned from a visit with relatives and friends in Rison, Ark.

Circle No. 4 of the W. M. U. First Baptist church held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. Nona Steele on South Hervey street. Fall flowers and beautiful potted plants were arranged around the table to the pleasure of the meeting. Nine members and one visitor present. A most interesting mission study was conducted by Mrs. Gus Haynes. During the social hour, the hostess served delicious refreshments.

The Friday Music club will sponsor Angelo Cortese, American's foremost harpist, in a concert at the city hall on Tuesday evening, December 3. A very pleasing feature of the concert will be a group of songs by the Choral club, one number being the songs they sang at the General U. D. C. convention in Hot Springs. They will wear period costumes. When you are approached to buy a ticket for this concert, remember that you are buying something good, and at the same time helping one of your town's organizations that is striving to give you that which is best—"Among the gifts that God hath sent—Music."

Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Allison were called to Conway Tuesday afternoon to attend the bedside of Dr. Allison's father, Dr. W. M. Allison who is critically ill at his home in that city.

Mrs. Charles Haynes is in Hot Springs this week attending the meeting of the general convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet at 2:30 Thursday afternoon at the First Baptist church for an interesting and inspiring meeting. The pastors of the different churches in the city will be present and make short talks. All the women of the city are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Circle No. 5 of the W. M. U. of the First Baptist church held a very interesting meeting on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. M. Clements on South Elm street with Mrs. Johnny James and Mrs. E. B. Wolfe as associate hostesses. The business period was conducted by the leader, Mrs. Cecil Weaver, and a very beautiful devotion on Thanksgiving was given by Mrs. H. A. Fisk. The closing chapters of the Mission Study Book, "At the Gates of Asia," were discussed by Mrs. Hugh Smith. Following the mission study, the hostess served a most tempting plate lunch to 23 members.

Mrs. J. D. Ellis of Texarkana, arrived Wednesday to attend the bedside of her sister, Mrs. Dan Green, who is a patient at Julia Chester hospital.

Goodness at Heart Men's Salvation

"Are You Mad?" Is Rev. Bert Webb's Sermon Topic at Tabernacle

The Rev. Bert Webb's message to the Tabernacle congregation Tuesday night was on the subject, "Are You Mad," from the following scriptures: Gen. 3:5; Rom. 8:7; Ecc. 9:3.

"I do not refer," said the Rev. Mr. Webb, "to that kind of madness which hinders when your temper gets away from you, but to the kind that Solomon had in mind when he said 'The heart of the sons of men is full of evil, and madness is in their heart while they live, and after that they go to the dead.'"

"I do not say that you are mentally unbalanced. Intellectually you are perfectly rational. I have no criticism to offer, but the Bible says that madness is in your heart, not in your mind or your intellect. God's word says that the carnal (fleshly) mind is in enmity against God. The Bible is a rule by which I feel we would be wise to govern our lives. People in Russellville tried to vote out Sunday motion pictures during the time of church services. That was fine, but before you are ever going to be able to legislate a man into something you are going to have to have his heart changed. I believe we will get farther that way than any other.

"It is the ambition of people to raise their children right. The natural inclination is for them to reveal in the measures and sins of the world, and when you clamp down on anything by sheer determination trouble starts. I advise you to pray to God to save your children that they may have a change of heart. Is not this desire in people to do wrong a kind of moral insanity?"

"People have the idea that when you surrender to God God will take away everything worth while from you. You feel that God is your enemy intent on doing you harm, but not so. 'If you were to warn someone going down a track that a fast train was almost upon them, and they told you to mind your own business, you would think something was wrong. What of those who are often warned of the consequences of sin, God's coming judgment, etc., and who fail to take warning?'

The Rev. Mr. Webb's message for Wednesday night is "In the Wrong Crowd," Thursday night, "The Great Tribulation."

to hold down that figure as low as possible. I have letters here from all parts of the state, some of them from law enforcement officers, saying that conditions are growing worse—that drunkenness is on the increase."

The Rev. Mr. Blaylock brought his speech to a close by picturing women made poverty-stricken and widows because their husbands were drunkards—shot down in drunken brawls. "Will the wet crowd be responsible for that?" he asked.

Miss Myrtle Bearden of Ouachita college spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bearden.

everything. They have lived up to nothing. They told us that repeal of the 18th amendment didn't mean that hard liquor would return. They lied about that. They broke every promise they ever made and then slapped you in the face with wet and false promises.

"The Arkansas legislature refused to let you vote on this question. They railroaded the Thorn liquor bill right on through, and didn't ask you about it nor give you a chance to express your opinion. That was not democratic."

"Your own local editor is not democratic enough to be willing for the people of this county to vote on this question. Why doesn't he want you to vote? Why does he want to deprive you of that vote? I'll tell you why. He does not want to give you the opportunity of an American right. That's not fair."

Ridiculous Advertising Ban
"He talks about not accepting liquor advertising—and brags about it. He couldn't do better in defending the liquor interests if he accepted all the money the wet crowd gave him."

Again there were a number of amens.

"Your editor criticizes the preachers and the church. I wonder what he thinks the duty of the preachers is? There is no law to prevent them from speaking out. There is no charter in Hope that prohibits the preacher from discussing the liquor question—is there? The preacher ought to quit if he wouldn't speak against the evils of liquor."

"And your editor says the churches pay no tax. He ought to inform himself about that. That's a reflection on his intelligence. The First Baptist church in Little Rock pays about $400 each year in taxes. I know of cases in this state where churches are about to be sold under the hammer for non-payment of taxes."

"With the legalization of liquor the wet crowd promised to abolish the bootlegger—that's a joke. Didn't the liquor dealers of Hope ask the enforcement officers a few days ago to make raids on the bootleggers of moonshine here? There are plenty of bootleggers everywhere."

"Licensed whisky will not abolish the untaxed liquor trade—licensed whisky only makes a double problem. The state administration promised you police protection when liquor was legalized. Yet Earl Wiseman, state commissioner, has already issued 17 liquor permits in towns over Arkansas where there is no police at all."

"They promised to lower your taxes. But have they? That came out of national headquarters. I haven't heard of lower taxes. Have you? Instead of lower taxes they slapped on additional taxes."

"Counties Bled White"

"The history of liquor never reduced taxes. You know that. The counties of Arkansas have been bled white for taxation to take care of the drunks, the poverty-stricken and the insane as the result of liquor."

"In Little Rock there has been a 25 per cent increase in drunkenness. The officers there will docket you for anything except drunkenness. They want to accept liquor advertising doesn't matter.

The Rev. Mr. Blaylock would not say that except for the fact that he is swept away by the passion of the moment. He is not in business. He doesn't understand what advertising can do, particularly when applied to a business in which the public profits most when sales are least.

I now have before me the October statement of national or factory advertising from our advertising brokers.

For the full eight months that liquor has been legalized—March through October—The Star has rejected a total of $1,073.01 worth of liquor advertising. That is an average of $1,609.51 for the year.

Advertising percentages range from 2 to 5 per cent—few take the higher mark. But assuming that the distilleries made the highest allowance, then their survey indicated that they had a reasonable chance of selling $20 worth of liquor in this territory for every dollar they spent with The Star.

On that basis, had we accepted their advertising, the six liquor stores of Hope would have sold an additional $32,190.20 worth of whisky per year. Their actual sales are running at $81,688 a year.

Cr. if the distilleries allowed only 2 per cent for advertising, then the ratio would have been $50 worth of liquor for every advertising dollar.

And on this basis they would have sold an additional $80,475.50 worth of whisky in Hope per year—practically doubling actual local sales!

What a newspaper can do voluntarily toward regulating the sale of liquor a state can do by compulsion.

to hold down that figure as low as possible. I have letters here from all parts of the state, some of them from law enforcement officers, saying that conditions are growing worse—that drunkenness is on the increase."

The Rev. Mr. Blaylock brought his speech to a close by picturing women made poverty-stricken and widows because their husbands were drunkards—shot down in drunken brawls. "Will the wet crowd be responsible for that?" he asked.

Ginger Rogers and Brent at Saenger

"In Person" Is Comedy Story of Temperamental Screen Star

A temperamental screen star falls in love with an independent male who curbs his affection on the grounds that her allure and national popularity are no excuse for her exasperating egotism. The stormy incidents which result from their rapidly alternating reactions to each other bring on a startling denouement.

This lively comedy-drama is brought to the screen in "In Person," in which Ginger Rogers has her first solo starring role. As the hampered lass who is forced to exert charm and strategem to win the man she loves, she is said to display to a high degree her flair for light dramatics. George Brent plays the leading male role opposite Miss Rogers.

From the story by Samuel Hopkins Adams, author of the screen-play of "It Happened One Night," "In Person" at the Saenger Thursday and Friday finds logical moments during which to introduce three popular songs and two dances interpreted by Ginger. In the distinct style which recently marked her brilliant work in "Top Hat," the titian-haired star dances in two smart numbers.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Wake Up Your Liver Bile—
The liver should put out two pounds of bile every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It then passes to the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your food system is poisoned and you feel sour, flat and the world looks pink.
Laxatives are only makeshifts. A more permanent remedy is to get at the cause. It is the liver. Old Carter's Little Liver Pills get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, sure, just amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

How Women Get Two-Fold Benefit By Taking Cardui

According to reports from thousands who have taken it, Cardui helps women in a two-fold manner, affording prompt relief of certain (functional) pains and strengthening the system by increasing the appetite and improving digestion.
"I like Cardui because it helped me," writes Mrs. Obie C. Rafferty, of Cambsville, Ky. "I suffered pain and was nervous and needed strength. I have taken Cardui and have been benefited. I have taken it two or three times. I can tell, when I am taking Cardui, that I have a much better appetite."
Before the next monthly upset, begin taking Cardui. Of course, if it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.
